Bass Rocks—Eastern Point

AMONG the attractive "places" at Bass Rocks are those of Ralph Wurts Dundas of Brooklyn. Mr. Dundas has been coming here for some 20 years. Some 15 years ago he built the fine residence which he makes his seashore home. The grounds have been embellished with discerning expenditure, coupled with good taste. Flower and foliage, leaf and vine, all contribute to as fine an ensemble of the kind as may be seen along the shore. A drive along this section of the Back Shore is well worth while. Many others of the summer colony have followed in the ALIFE on the Ocean Wave" is the popular sea song down here, written, by the way, by a Gloucester-born literateur of some 50 years ago, "Epes Sargent." "Epes" was editor of the Boston Transcript for 30 years. You can find some of the Sargent name today in Squam village. Which paragraph means that yachting is the popular diversion here. It is well and fitting. In the olden time Annisquam was one of the principal fishing villages of the Cape. The inhabitants of Sandy Bay, now Rockport, having no safe har-

MIDSUMMER at Magnolia! High Twelve—as the summer season goes—all along the shore. Magnolia has come into its own with a rush this season. Every cottage offering was taken early and the hotel reservations were exhausted before the Fourth of July. Everything has conspired to make the season what it is—war over hot wave in June driving people Eastward to the shore and above all, prosperity! Under these conditions it is natural to expect that a building boom for this section is in order and this applies to every

INFORMATION has been released that the stay of the two battleships, the U. S. S. Delaware and North Dakota, will be prolonged through August. Moreover, it is said that the entire North Atlantic fleet will mobilize at Provincetown and will be seen at the various ports along the New England coast in September and the early Fall. Of course Rockport will be one of these ports and the stay of the fleet may mean a prolongation of the season, although after a time their presence as well as that of the men is taken as a matter of course.

wake of this pioneer and this entire stretch promises to become one of the show places of the Cape.

From Mother Ann to Cape Hedge even to Halibut Point and around the Cape completing the circle, everything available in accommodation for the summer resident was some weeks ago preempted. The early bird who came cottage hunting and took what was offering was the fortunate one, this year.

Bass Rocks, Eastern Point, the Rocky Neck shore where the summer folk foregather have seen some prosperous seasons—but nothing like the present. One is naturally lead to speculate as to the extent of the growth of the colony within the next 15 or 20 years for, despite the high cost of building material, there must be expansion in Hoteldom and Cottage-bor for their boats, came across Dogtown Commons (melodious name) and anchored their boats in Lobster Cove which furnished a good haven from the winds and sea.

During the yacht racing Saturday, afternoon tea was served. Mrs. S. Henry Hooper officiated, assisted by Mrs. M. A. Baldwin and Mrs. William H. Pear. The matrons at the dance in the evening were Mrs. William M. Jelly and Mrs. Charles S. Norton.

Like the Yeomen (F) of the Navy the yachtsmen (F) of the Annisquam Yacht Club give an exceedingly good account of themselves. After last Saturday's race the able seamen who sailed in the Catboat class were loud in their praises of the skillful manner in which Miss Pauline Ames, daughter of Oakes Ames, of North Easton, handled the tiller and piloted her craft, desirable seashore locality as well. Such was the case after the Civil War when the big fortunes made from that conflict began to show in increased luxury of living. The abnormal price of material and labor is given as a deterrent reason. However, the large fortunes have come and been increased and perhaps the recipients of this largesse should feel disposed to pass some of it along to the fellow down the line who must be kept satisfied.

We have always considered that the stretch of Magnolia shore property, winding from Rafe's Chasm to the Life Saving Station, at Old House Cove, fronting Gloucester Bay, is one of the most desirable in this section of the North Shore for seaside villas. There is every advantage of sea and shore deeply wooded—an all-important combination.

Then again the city has laid down a

Nevertheless the ships inevitably attract a large number. The families of the officers, and the men down the line, all desire to be with their own heroes as much as possible, and the aggregate of those who make their home here during this period is a profitable total, viewing the proposition from the summer resort standpoint. The probability is that a squadron, or part of a squadron, will be in evidence in Sandy Bay for some years to come. The New England seacoast with its unrivalled harbors, of deep water, easy of access and situated most advantageously from a strategic standpoint, offers facilities for Naval bases not to be equalled on the North Atlantic coast.

TO ADVERTISERS

THE CAPE ANN SHORE, now in its twenty-fourth consecutive season, is the only summer resort publication on Cape Ann. It reaches every section of the cape, and is the only means of communication of the kind between the merchants and the summer residents. Therefore its value as an advertising medium is self-evident. It contains each week a full and complete account of the social happenings of the summer resort section. It occupies a place by itself in the advertising field, reaching the most profitable customers along the North Shore. Advertisers should remember these facts.

THE CAPE ANN SHORE.

This publication is entering upon its 24th season. It has become a fixture with many of the summer colony, among whom it has many friends and well wishers. The advertisers who use its columns are those who believe that the summer colony is an appreciable factor in the prosperity of the community. These should be given the precedence of your patronage. After an absence of two years in the Naval Reserve its conductor has returned and will give the paper his individual attention.

EASTERN POINT TO FRANCE AND BACK AGAIN.

Lieut.-Col. A. Piatt Andrew, since his coming to this city some twenty-five years or more ago, has been what is termed in the vernacular a "live wire," always in the thick of things doing for the welfare of the old Cape. He became a citizen of Gloucester, in the civic advancement of which he takes the highest interest.

It was natural, therefore, when the call to arms sounded, that the appeal should find a willing reception, the more so, because ancestral ties bound him strongly, in sentiment, at least, to France.

He immediately got busy and was the organizer of the American field service. He was a member of the Field Service Section No. 1, 1915, and was made Field Service Inspector-General in the same year, serving as such to 1917, when he was given a Major's commission in the U. S. Army and advanced to a Lieutenant-Colonelcy in 1918. He was decorated with the Croix de Guerre and the Legion of Honor in 1917.

Col. Andrew arrived home several weeks ago. A Post of the American Legion was formed in this city last week, and he was unanimously honored by election as its first Commander and has entered upon an enthusiastic and aggressive campaign to furnish a fitting and permanent home for these Veterans of The World War.

He is at present engaged in writing his Memoirs of the Great War, which will fill two volumes and which he expects will be off the press some time in December.

Judging from his "letters" which were privately printed and circulated among his friends at Eastern Point, the more mature "Memoirs" should prove of special interest to the North Shore.

Lieut.-Col. A. Piatt Andrew.

The following is from an address to the men of his command while in the field:

"Even in ordinary times it is a privilege to live in this 'doux pays de France'—to move about among its gentle and finished landscapes, in the presence of beautiful architectural heritage and in daily contact with its generous, sensitive, and highly gifted people. Life in France, even in ordinary times, means to those of almost any other country daily suggestions of courtesy, refinement and thoughtful consideration for others. It means continual suggestions of an intelligent perspective in the art of living and in the things that give life dignity and worth. But the opportunity of living in France, as we Americans lived, meant all this and more. It meant glimpses of human nature shorn of self, exalted by love of country, singing and jesting amidst hardships, smiling at pain, unmindful even of death. It meant contact with the most gentle and most intelligent of modern peoples facing incredible suffering, prolonged and prodigious sacrifices, mortal peril—facing them with silent unshakable resolve, victoriously resisting them with modesty and never a vaunting word. It meant visions of courage, resignation and heroism as fine as any that history records. Nothing else surely can ever offer so much of noble inspiration as these glimpses of the moral grandeur of unconquerable France.

"In serving with the armies of France, we enjoyed a privilege of unique and inestimable value, a privilege the memory of which will remain our proud and cherished heritage as long as any of us survive.

"A. PIATT ANDREW."

SEEK HAVEN AT THE BARNACLE.

Narrow Escape of Automobile Party of Mrs. J. P. Jones of Nevada.

Automobile Became Stalled In Sands of Wingaersheek Beach and Tide Overflows.—Gaieties at Quaint Tea House.

The gaiety of the season and the fine weather have aided in making The Barnacle veranda even more popular than usual. A particularly delightful afternoon was spent at cards, Tuesday. Those present were Mrs. Geo. C. Andrew, Mrs. Julian Burdick, Mrs. S. Henry Hooper, Mrs. Wm. Rice, Mrs. Everett Rice, Mrs. Wm. Haworth, Mrs. Edward Thomas, Mrs. Butts and Mrs. Robert K. Dickerman. These well known society women were the guests of Mrs. John Shafer, who is always a charming hostess, and for many years has summured at Annisquam.

A very merry party from the Hotel Edward were Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Williamson, Mrs. John C. Curtis and two dear little boys, Curtis and Price Berrian.

Mrs. James P. Pierce of Cambridge and Miss Florence Oliver were at The Barnacle on Wednesday. Mrs. Pierce has been coming to Annisquam for about forty years, and to say the least, finds many changes. However, she says she loves it just as much as ever, and we know everyone is fond of her.

A few days ago an unfortunate experience occurred to the automobile of Mrs. John P. Jones, wife of the senator, who for 30 years was elected from Nevada. In trying to ride on Wingaersheek Beach the sand was not hard enough to hold the car, and the moment the auto stopped the party realized they were sinking. Desperate efforts were made, but the incomplete side swept over the machine before it could be removed. The unhappy party came immediately to The Barnacle. Despite this unfortunate occurrence, the old Tea House was much pleased to have Mrs. Jones return on Wednesday, bringing other friends with her: Mrs. Margaret Courant, Miss Juliette Courant, Mrs. Robert Walton.

EDNA FERGUSON T HOUSE.

A delightful cool and attractive place on the North Shore this summer is Edna Ferguson's T House, Magnolia, just around the corner from the Post Office. The large shady lawns and vine-wreathed piazzas offer the loveliest of nooks for afternoon tea, luncheon or dinner. That the services and food have already found a real favour with the many people who have visited this charming T House, is evidenced by some of the remarks that have been made by those entertained; e. g., one gentleman was heard to say, "Quality and quantity is a combination not often found, but here it certainly is." An English lady said, "This is the very best tea I have had anywhere." And we might quote many more similar expressions of appreciation.

Very attractive rooms with board may also be had at this T House, whose cool, quiet and homeiness appeal to so many people, and whose excellent home-cooked food cannot be excelled.

Among the very many who have enjoyed afternoon tea, dinner or luncheon on the shady lawns and piazzas of Edna Ferguson's T House, Magnolia, have been: Mrs. David C. Percival, Marblehead Neck; Mrs. Herman Parker, Marblehead Neck; Mrs. J. Harrington Walker, Miss Betty Walker, Mrs. Sidney R. Small, Detroit; Mrs. A. V. Moore, Forest Hill Gardens; Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Dorrance, Magnolia; Mrs. John Ross, Miss Isabel Ross, Liverpool, England; Mr. and Mrs. H. Howard Farness, Jr., Philadelphia, Pa.; Mrs. J. Gordon Hardy, El Paso, Tex.; Miss Mary A. Nyder, Washington, D. C.; Miss Jean Middleton, New York; Mr. J. Edward Hussey, St. Louis, Mo.; Miss Eveline Rieman Early, Baltimore; Mrs. E. Walter Clark, Miss Margaret Limerick, Philadelphia, Pa.; Mrs. F. van der Bogert, Schenectady, N. Y.; Mrs. Scott O'Connor, New York; Mr. and Mrs. Chas. N. Thompson, Indianapolis; Mrs. Jno. T. Lodge, Boston.

Minister offering consolation:—"My good brother, do you realize that you are about to face the King of Terrors? Are you not afraid of The Hereafter?"

Head of House:—"No, I've lived with the Queen of Terrors all my life and I guess I can stand what's coming."

A "YANKEE" EARL.

Heir to the Broad Acres of Earl of Lindsay of New England Lineage. His Mother of an Essex County Family.

In our issue of two weeks ago we chronicled the giving of a dinner to 14 by Mr. and Mrs. John Hays Hammond at their residence, Lookout Hill, Freshwater Cove, in honor of the Earl and Countess of Lindsay, who are staying at the residence of the Countess' parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Tucker of Manchester-by-the-Sea.

The Lindsays are one of the oldest and most distinguished families in the Kingdom, dating back to 1633. Of especial interest to North Shore society is the fact that the Countess, a New England woman, comes from the old family of Tuckers, famous in New England maritime history. Her brother Randolph married Miss Mona House, daughter of the Warwick of the present administration.

Of added interest is the fact that the young son of the Earl and Countess, half an American by lineage, is the last of the line. The Great War exacted enormous toll from the upper classes of the British Isles, who did not shirk their duty at the call, but true to the traditions of their kind, were in the forefront for the defense of the Empire. The Lindsays were of these.

An element of pathos is added to the fact that the aged Earl and Countess will come over to this country in the fall for the purpose of taking this heir back to the ancestral estates until his coming of age and assumption of the title. From "Who's Who" of England we gather the following facts regarding the family. It will be found an interesting historical condensation:

LINDSAY, 11th Earl of (cr. 1633), David Clark Bethune, Jr.; Lord Lindsay of The Byres, 1445; Baron Parbroth, 1633; Viscount Garnock; Baron Kilbirny, Kingburne, and Drumry, 1703. (This Earl is descended from the ancient line of Wormistone; 2nd Lord presented an historical grey horse to James 3rd before the battle of Sauchieburn, 1488; 6th Baron was implicated in the death of Rizzio, 1566; 10th Lord became 1st Earl and then 17th Earl of Crawford, was leader of the Covenanters, but endeavored to rescue Charles 1st from his captivity, 1648; 1st Earl was also a great Covenanter; 20th Earl was first Commander of the Black Watch, 1740; he rendered distinguished services against the French and Turks, and in 1745 maintained order in the Lowlands; Earldom of Crawford devolved from 22nd Earl to 6th Earl Balcarres, 1808; 8th Earl saw wide and distinguished services for near a half century, and reduced Coorg in India; 9th Earl rendered most eminent service to Persia, b. 18 April, 1832; s. of David Aytone Lindsay and Jane Emilia, d. of John Aytone of Kippo, Fifeshire; S. cousin, 1894; m. 1866, Emily Marian, d. of Robert Crosse, Doctor's commons and widow of Capt. To My Lady in Search of the Artistic

SYMPATHETIC CRITIQUE OF A REMARKABLE SHOWING OF GLOUCESTER ARTISTS.

Childe Hassam, Maurice Prendergast, Hayley Lever, Charles Hopkinson and Others of Note Represented by Some of Their Best Canvases.

By H. R. H.

The Gallery-on-the-Moors has an exhibition open until August 11. It is well worth a walk across those Moors or a motor ride from any point on the North Shore, if only to see the new arrangement of the gallery, to wit, the little fountain in the centre, with its cool, splashing sound—while from it, poised on tip toes, springs a water sprite by Harriet Whitney Frishmuth!

The soft gray curtains of the stage at one end of The Gallery (the stage known to the Cape Ann Players) are looped back as usual, and against them the ever-pleasing dark mass of bushes; the shining green of the bay-berry, set in squatly shaped brasses, that glow a dull yellow with a spark of gold in the heart of them.

Against the white walls, the little exhibit makes a mosaic band of color, for practically every picture is "Hung on the line."

Childe Hassam's woodland nymph (The Alders) about to bathe, that he loves to depict, occupies the centre of the wall on the right. Some remarks that I overheard were to the effect that they "wished Childe Hassam would do something else, even if he did handle this eternal summer scene so well."

I wished very much to conduct those critics to the end of the gallery away from the stage, where his "Indian Summer Colonial Days" hangs. It shows the end of an old house and garden, painted in pale green—not the tints of spring, but bringing to mind the sad dull days of autumn, with its air of listening in the hush that follows the falling of the leaves.

This little monotone is flanked by two small heads, also Hassam's, placed with decorative effect, but otherwise, I must confess, lacking interest.

In sharp contrast to Childe Hassam's style is a jolly, amusing medley of color, called "Entrance to the Harbor," that looks as if Mr. Maurice B. Prendergast has played joyously with it, as a child with its Noah's Ark animals. He kept his grandmother's sampler in mind, thereby producing an original effect, even to the cross-stitch so ably suggested by his technique.

On turning to Mr. Sloan's memory sketch, "Dust Storm, Virginia," we have once more a swift change of style, and even school.

It is largely done in neutral tints, that contrast well with the inky black storm cloud that darkens everything like the last days of Pompeii. Tree-tops bend violently, one way, under the first blast of the tempest, while the whirlwind character of the storm is clearly conveyed to us, by the figures on the street, clad in light summer garb, that are scurrying to cover, in the opposite direction, like a flight of frightened pigeons.

Mr. Sloan's "Red Road," a bit of strong almost raw color, is again interesting, as showing the range of his palette.

His figure piece, "Efzenka the Czech," leaves a strange impression when you get close enough to be paralyzed by her cyclo-pian eye staring out from the shade of her hat's brim.

One of Hayley Lever's happy sunlight and atmospheric successes hangs hard by the Red Road, its title:—"Lower New York." It makes that dirty metropolis of ours into a fairy-city of shining white,—such is the power of Hayley Lever's wand.

Now we come to Charles Hopkinson. "Old master," we might be justified in calling the portrait, because of its almost black back-ground and carefully weighed values as shown in the white map?—or is it a plan?—held in the interesting hands. The white paper cuts across the figure of his sitter, making a novel and daring line in the composition.

This is the pleasure we almost always find in Mr. Hopkinson's portraits; they are never commonplace, and rarely twice alike.

Note the high, bright key in which his neighboring portrait of a young girl is painted; you would not think it came from the same hand, while the heads of his three children (with a tree—suggesting Thayer's—in the background) is pitched in a middle key.

Before we pass finally to the wall on the left, let us retrace our steps to look at two portraits. We are frankly puzzled by the portrait by Wm. J. Glackens. It suggests nothing so much as the title of a story, by the once popular and amusing author, Frank Stockton, called "The Lady or the Tiger?" only in this case we suggest "The Lady or the Zebra?"

It calls marked attention to the stripes by its title, "Girl in Black and White." The lady isn't feeling well, we know, because she has peagreen shadows about her eyes, and there is an ill concealed attempt at gaiety, as apparent in a red rose being pinned to er—er—her dia-phragm; to be strictly anatomical as to where Mr. Glackens placed the rose. Maybe a rose in that quarter would make anyone feel ill.

No, this portrait is too depressingly modern for our poor intellects to encompass, and we turn with satisfaction and relief to that other portrait in its quiet colors by Mr. Kronberg, "The Patriot," that shows an old lady with an ever-so-faint smile lurking at the corners of her mouth. She is intent upon her knitting, but not to the exclusion of the pleasant knowledge that she is "Being taken."

She has the charm that other old ladies may not exercise, because she also has the character to wear a bonnet with strings, all hail to her! May Mr. Kronberg exhibit her often and in many places, that she may carry the light to her sex.

Mr. Kronberg also shows a wide range of color and style, for on the opposite wall hang companion pieces, in strong color with decoration effects; we are speaking of "A Symphony In Rose" and "A Ballet Girl In Pink."

Now there is Jonas Lie's "Winter:—Washington Square." Here, once more, New York city is pleasantly camouflaged with pristine whiteness; the buildings blooming in a pink row, like so many hollyhocks against the pale blue of the sky.

Where Mr. Lie touches water and shipping, he is master of his brush at all times as seen in "At the Docks" and "The Harbor."

Mr. Glacken's "Captain's Pier" has an attractive sky and strong afternoon sunlight; in his "After Bathing," however, his palette seems once more to go on a color "jag."

Viewing the exhibit as a whole, we can most sincerely congratulate this group of artists on the variety and strength of their work.

In addition, the arrangement of the exhibit is well done, while the surroundings leave a most agreeable impression, as if an intimate note had been sounded that would gladden us henceforth.

MAGNOLIA

Hotel Aborn, which is this season under the management of Miss R. W. Davidson of the Holderness Inn, N. H., has many new attractions, among them evening bridge parties, and Wednesday and Saturday concerts which are greatly enjoyed by the guests. Among those who are stopping at the Hotel are Mr. and Mrs. Ernest L. Thayer of Santa Barbara, Cal.; Col. and Mrs. E. H. Haskell of Newton Centre; Miss B. M. Bickford of Boston; Dr. and Mrs. F. T. Stewart of Philadelphia; F. R. C. Steele and family of Brookline; Miss Emily Gray of Cambridge; Mrs. C. H. Collins of Dorchester; Professor William G. Ward of Boston; Dr. and Mrs. J. M. Hills of Boston; Mr. Charles O. Billings of Newton; the Misses E. F. and E. Harris of Cambridge; Miss Abbey Covell, Miss Helen Covell, Col. H. A. Royce, Mrs. Lewis M. Hamilton and Mrs. Charles J. Lee of Boston.

Mr. Edward Foster and family of Winchester have opened their cottage on the Shore road. Mr. Foster, with Mrs. Foster and daughter, Miss Frances Foster, spent the winter in California with headquarters at Hotel Green, Pasadena. Miss Foster is a graduate of Radcliffe College in the class of 1918. Her brother, Edward Foster, Jr., expects to enter Boston Tech. in the fall.

Miss Ethel Morse, who with her parents is in the Perkins cottage, one of the Ocean-side group, entertained her fiancé, Mr. Candler Bowditch of Brookline, over the past week-end.

"Stonehurst," the attractive North Shore residence of Mrs. Claude Kilpatrick of St. Louis, has as house guests, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Perry and baby of New York and Miss Elizabeth Liggett Sander of St. Louis, granddaughters of Mrs. Kilpatrick.

The Misses Mary and Josephine Hall of Natick are the guests of their sister, Mrs. William J. Barry, at her residence on Fuller street.

REPRESENTATIVE SHOWING OF CAPE ANN ARTIST COLONY IN HISTORIC MANSE.

North Shore Colony Turns Out In Force To Attend Opening. Large Marines Conspicuous by Their Absence.

The first Art Exhibition, which includes non-resident artists as well as the Cape Ann group, ever given in this city is now open to the public in the historic Sargent-Murray-Gilman Tea House on Middle street.

The exhibition has unusual interest on account of the portrait by the world-famous artist, John Singer Sargent, a descendant from the original Sargents, who built and occupied this charming colonial mansion.

Cape Ann has been the Mecca of artists from the earliest American pioneers in art and we can almost claim citizenship with such noted men as Duveneck, Picknell and others past the Great Divide, who spent many of their out-of-door seasons here.

The following is a list of the artists represented in the exhibition:

Painters.

Marion Boyd Allen, Alice Worthington Ball, Paul Bartlett, Theresa F. Bernstein, Alexander A. Bower, F. A. Brown, Louise Upton Brumback, A. W. Buhler, William Baxter Crosson, Eben Comins, Paul Connover, John A. Cook, Fern Coppedge, Charles Demuth, F. M. Doederlein, William J. Glackens, Childe Hassam, Alice Preble Tucker de Haas, Charles H. Hopkinson, Felecia Waldo Howell, C. S. Kaelin, Richard M. Kimbel, Frank H. Kidder, Edmund C. Klotz, Irma Kohn, Louis Kronberg, Hayley Lever, G. T. Margeson, Mary Nicholena MacCord, Hobart Nichols, George L. Noyes, E. Parker Nordell, Carl J. Nordell, Jean Nutting Oliver, Walter L. Palmer, Parker S. Perkins, Annie L. Perot, Bertha Perry, Jane Peterson, Maurice B. Prendergast, T. M. Pierce, Agnes Richmond, Henry B. Snell, M. B. Titcomb, Winthrop Turney, T. V. C. Valenkamph, Harry Vincent, Martha Walter, Mary L. Weiss, William Weiss.

Sculptors.

Albert Henry Atkins, Louise Allen, P. Bryant Baker, Robert P. Baker, Helen Sahler, Helne-Hale.

Etchers.

Frederick G. Hall, Arthur W. Heinzelman, Thomas H. Mill, William Meyero-witz.

Other artists will also be represented and works will be changed from time to time without notice.

It will be seen by the above list that many noted painters are represented and the exhibition as a standard of excellence ranks high in comparison with those shown by these artists in the galleries of the great cities.

There are some canvases which are said to be extremely modern, and their merit is not always within the comprehension of the layman, but there are many beautiful pictures which at once appeal not only to our sense of reason, but for their harmony and skilful handling. Most of the sub-

The dance given by the men of the North Dakota on board the ship in Sandy Bay Tuesday evening was greatly enjoyed by the young lady guests of the Granite Shore Hotel, and they were loud in their praise of the many courtesies shown them by the gallant sailor boys. Among those who availed themselves of the invitation were Mrs. Charles I. Pierce, Miss Katherine Brady, Mrs. Bart. C. Lawton, Mrs. F. S. Schell, Miss E. L. Handy.

WHEELER'S POINT.

One of the pleasantest spots along the Annisquam River is Wheeler's Point, the home of many cottagers who each year enjoy the season in this favored locality.

Fred S. Thompson and family in Lilac cottage are spending their 30th season here and are among the deans of the summer colony in this section.

R. N. Burness and family of Hyde Park, who built a cottage here several years ago, are numbered among the cottage roster.

Mrs. L. R. Symmes and family of Winchester make their summer home at "Orchard cottage" and were among the early July arrivals.

P. J. Maguire and family of Somerville make the Perkins cottage their summer home and are established there for the present season.

Harold M. Burnham and family of Dorchester are in San Souci cottage, their home in summer for several seasons.

Dr. Harry P. Roberts of Boston has made his summer home at "Clearview" for 20 years, and is again enjoying the delights of life on the riverside.

Charles McIntosh and family are others of the pioneer settlers from Gloucester, their cottage being on the point.

Fitz McIntosh, the city messenger of Gloucester, who died last winter, who made his summer home on the Point, is missed by his many friends in the colony.

Reuben T. Williamson and family of Chelsea are again domiciled for the season at their cottage.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred B. Chapman of Boston are again occupying "Sea View" cottage.

Mrs. Nicholas J. McNeil and family of Charlestown are among the cottage contingent again at the Point for the summer.

Mrs. B. D. Howard of Gloucester is again occupying her cottage.

Mrs. Scott W. Mooring is occupying the Brown cottage. Maj. Mooring is overseas in the Medical Corps with the Expeditionary forces.

Thomas Scott of Somerville is this season occupying the "Maryland" cottage.

Arthur Weaver and family of Boston are in "Sea 'Coy" cottage for the summer.

The Misses Hannah, Sarah and Bina Glynn of Brookline are occupying a cottage here.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Libby of Boston have "Curlew" cottage this season.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hughes of Boston are in the "Wamigan" cottage.

Mrs. Caroline Knowles of New York arrived early in the month at her summer home, "The Nook."

Dr. Fenderson and family of Malden have the "Bungalow" for the season.

Herbert L. Hill and family of Reading are again at "Sunset" cottage for the season.

EASTERN POINT GOLF LINKS.

The putting and bridge party announced for Wednesday was postponed on account of the rain and was given Saturday by Mrs. Frances Wayland of Summer-ville, S. C., and Mrs. Erben of New York, and proved a most enjoyable occasion.

The Eastern Point Golf Club house presents an animated appearance nowadays. Saturday there were 60 at tea and Monday 44 partook of the hospitality of the club house.

Dr. Shumway and two daughters from the Mailman House are among the latest to join the Eastern Point Golf Club.

Col. Bruce and family from Toronto, now at the Beachcroft, were welcomed by their many friends on the links again this week.

Other members of the club who were noticed for the first time this week include Mrs. M. S. Kenney and two sons from Baltimore.

Mrs. Crocker of Brookline, an annual guest at the Hawthorne, gave tea for ten of her friends on the lawn of the club house Friday.

SQUAM WILLOWS—RIGGS POINT SECTION.

Joseph McPhee and mother and City Solicitor M. Francis Buckley and family of the city are occupying Minnehaha cottage purchased by Mr. McPhee several years ago.

Capt. Charles Smith and family of Gloucester are occupying Star cottage.

Mr. and Mrs. William Reblin of Lynn have a cottage here for the season.

Dr. Ferris and family of Jamaica Plain arrived for the season early in July at the cottage occupied by them for the past ten years.

Mrs. Christine Dickson and family of Jamaica Plain are again at the cottage at Riggs Point they have occupied for several years past.

Capt. Carl C. Young and family of Gloucester are again established for the season at their cottage on the Rocky Point shore.

Mrs. Caroline M. Brown and son Stephen of Haverhill are occupying the Thomas Riggs homestead in Vine street, the oldest house on Cape Ann, built in 1656. Mrs. Brown is a lineal descendant of Thomas Riggs, the builder. Mr. Riggs was the second town clerk and one of the earliest shorthand writers in this country.

Dr. J. H. Keltie and family of Jamaica Plain are occupying the cottage at Riggs Point where they have made their summer home for the past 15 years.

Samuel Mason and family of Cambridge are as usual spending the summer in Sumac cottage.

ANNISQUAM.

One of the most interesting places in the Annisquam river is Merchant's island, the home of a cottage colony, the greater part of whom have come there for 25 years and more. This is one of the first places on Cape Ann utilized for camping purposes. In the early 60's the Annisquam riverside on both banks from Wolf hill to Squam light and from Rust island to Merchant's was dotted with white tents of the campers, many of whom were residents of Gloucester proper. Gradually others from the outside came in and the entire stretch has increased in popularity. The easterly bank of the river from its accessibility by steam and electric cars has developed more rapidly but the motor boat, the dredging of the river making the stream navigable at all tides and the building of a road to the Rust, or as it is now called Annisquam island, thereby giving communication with the island at all times, will tend to increase the number who favor these sections for summer homes.

JUDITH SARGENT ART GALLERY.

jects are local—harbor and shore views, a few figures—of these a large one by Carl J. Nordell. Other noted summer resident artists represented by excellent examples of their work are, Childe Hassam, Louis Kronberg, Haley Lever, Wm. B. Closson, Paul Connoyer, George L. Noyes and others.

There is a noticeable absence of purely marine subjects, and while the hanging space for this exhibition does not permit of the acceptance of large canvases, it would seem that some of the strong marines by our local men, which have claimed our admiration and respect for so long, would serve to break the monotony and convention, not only of this exhibition, but of many that have been given in the past.

There is said to be a scarcity of good marine pictures. Therefore this particular line of art would seem to demand encouragement for there seems to us to be no subject so inspiring as a vast body of water in action, or a tall ship on a great expanse of moving and restless sea.

It is to be hoped that the present exhibition will be the beginning of the establishment of a permanent gallery where the citizens and summer visitors may have an opportunity to see the work, not only of the painters whose names are familiar to us, but of noted men of other art-circles and even other countries.

The present exhibition was made possible through the energetic and untiring work of Rev. Levi M. Powers, D. D., whose enthusiasm in restoring the grand old mansion of the Sargents, Murrays and Gilmans has proven to be one of the most valuable realizations in the way of historical intent that the city has ever enjoyed.

The exhibition is under the direction of Miss Grace Ross Horne.

One of the paintings by a local artist, Gilbert T. Margeson, is of the campanile on the structure belonging to the Gorton-Pew Co. near the Italian quarter. The artist has succeeded admirably in conveying the Sicilian atmosphere and air which the theme suggests. It is one of the best things he has done recently.

The reception preceding the formal opening of the Art Gallery attracted one of the largest and most representative New England audiences gathered in this city for many a day—including a number interested in the preservation of these old historic Colonial mansions. Not only New England, but various sections of the west included in the North Shore Summer Colony. Mrs. Winthrop Sargent of Philadelphia and Mrs. Sullivan A. Sargent of Brookline were the hostesses. Among the number present were: Mr. and Mrs. A. Howard Walker of the Boston Museum of Fine Arts, Mr. and Mrs. Louis C. Elson, Mrs. George Madden Martin of Kentucky, author of "Emmy Lou," Mrs. Alex. Laughlin and Mrs. Clarence Byrnes of the Pittsburgh Colony at Eastern Point, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Palmer, Miss Lelia Mechin, Mrs. J. P. Farrell, Norwegian Consul Justin Paasche and Mrs. Paasche of Thurston's Point, Mr. and Mrs. William Carpenter, Judge Charles B. Howry of the Supreme Court and Mrs. Howry of Washington, Miss Caroline Tichnor, Col. A. Piatt Andrew, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Fabian Bachrach, Miss Margaret L. Corlies, Mrs. Robert E. Livingstone and Mrs. E. Prescott Rowe of Magnolia, Mrs. Robert S. Rantoul and the Misses Rantoul of Salem, Mrs. Lyman W. Gale and Mr. Winsor Gale of Annisquam, Mrs. William Sullivan of Brookline, Mr. Harrison Ellery, the antiquarian and genealogist; Mrs. Gorham P. Sargent and Miss Dorothy Sargent of Haverford, Penna., Misses Grace F. and Helen Sargent of Brookline, Mrs. John C. Spring, and Mrs. Rollin A. Lincoln and Miss Katherine Lincoln of Cole's Island, Mrs. Leverett C. Parsons of Magnolia.

Probably no finer example of the pre-colonial wood carving is to be found than in this "Judith Sargent" house. Built by the most prosperous merchant of the time for his favorite daughter as a wedding

Why spend time and money on railroads to Boston and New York when the choicest selection of both cities can be found by a 20 minute motor trip to the shops of

MAGNOLIA

MY LADY GOES SHOPPING.

This time, Peggy and I resisted the lure of the Magnolia Arcade and steered for the streets of Gloucester. "See America First!" cried Peggy, as she switched on the self starter. Let's postpone the Rue-De-Lu-Paix-Bond-Street-Fifth-Avenue combination of Cosmopolitan Magnolia for another day, and make straight for Main Street U. S. A.!"

Well, Gloucester has a Continental charm of its own! Its "Main" Street isn't like any other Main Street in the world.

As you follow its winding ways, you get surprising glimpses of bits of shipping and docks and logs and ropes and other seagoing scenes that are just too quaint!

I've always wanted to spend a whole day just poking about in these fascinating bye-ways. Peggy says there is more salt to the square inch in the Gloucester air than on any ocean voyage she has ever met. And on the drive over from Eastern Point, Peggy wanted to know what were those millions of rows of racks with canvas on them. When I told her that was where the great Gorton Pew Fisheries dried their sacred cod, she said that it reminded her rather of the way they dry Macaroni in her beloved Italy, only there they dry it on the housetops—or any other little nook that comes handy—and as you drive along, everybody's drying a little patch of their own—man, woman and bambino.

Peggy is learning an Italian word a week—because she is going to be what she calls a Semi-Italian bridesmaid at a wedding when one of the better halves is her dearest friend and the other an Italian aviator, Giovanni Fernandini, who rescued her from a swarm of bees when she was driving an ambulance on the Italian Front.

So Peggy is making a collection of handy Italian words by heart, in honor of the occasion and "Bambino" is the name for baby in Caruso's native tongue.

All this briny conversation reminded Peggy that she wanted a bathing cap to match the nymph green concoction she swims about in—and also some high laced bathing boots. So we went first to Almy Bigelow's. It's a snap to find—right opposite the Post Office and on the same street as Wetherell's Drug Store where Peggy's Aunt Lila gets all her prescriptions filled fresh once every two weeks, regardless of whether she needs them or not. Aunt Lila believes in preparedness—and at home in Detroit, even Mike, the policeman came for her gentle "First Aid" when he got his thumb mixed up with the wrong end of the hatchet, which Maggie, the cook, had vamped him into using on a box of Assorted Packed Fish just arrived from the Frank E. Davis Co.

Well, to get back to what Peggy calls her "Submarine Trousseau"—(that's the fun of Gloucester, you start out for one thing and before you know it, you're a million miles away and still you're just next door) Peggy had shopped at Almy Bigelow's in Salem the day she set out to study the Psychology of Witchcraft or something like that, and met Ralph Thornton, and Ralph tipped the Garage-man to find something very wrong with Peggy's car while he and Peggy had lunch. When I teased Ralph about it later, he said:

"You don't have to tip most Garage men to find something the matter with your car in most towns—they do the discovering free gratis—but in this neck of the woods, they're so blooming honest, and anyhow I wanted five hours' worth of trouble guaranteed—and it had to be pretty well framed to convince Peggy. She's no end of a shark on motors since she returned from that ambulance-driving outfit she took over in Italy!"

Even now I'm not quite sure whether or not Ralph really succeeded in making that engine trouble look sincere on the part of Peggy's little Khaki car! Peggy never mentioned it—but Ralph complained bitterly that she led him to Almy Bigelow's and made him stand around groaning for hours while she shopped and shopped and shopped!

Well, Peggy and I found the Almy Bigelow's of Gloucester right up to the Salem sample. It was so cool and pleasant after the summer glare of the street. While it seemed well filled with people buying at the different counters, yet the skilled arrangement of the plan, with its tall pillars and everything, gives you a sense of dignified space. It's a big and busy shop but, Mr. Burke, the manager, is never too busy to give his personal assistance in any special matter.

Peggy got the most adorable pale green jockey bathing cap—which would make any mermaid jealous—and I saw some darling little boxes and bottles of exquisite shades of blue. They were marked "Imogene."

I asked what and who "Imogene" is—and it seems she's quite the newest little name-sake for all kinds of complexion specialties—cold-cream and powder and everything—so both Peggy and I got one of each and we expect to be more beautiful than ever on our next appearance in the beau monde!

Peggy doesn't need to be any more beautiful.

She's one of those lucky people who look their best at all moments—no matter if their hair is over one ear and their hat over the other.

And usually she doesn't care a hang—and wears any old thing any old time—though I must say that she has a way with her clothes and the result is always surprisingly smart.

But lately Peggy has grown ultra particular.

I have my suspicions that Peggy is in love! And I'm not going to tell anyone until I can pick up a few guaranteed clues, because I never believe in mentioning anything as important as that until you are quite certain of it. But just the same, I think she is, and I told Jack I'd bet him the sport-hat I've ordered in Magnolia, only he is to buy me another if I lose the bet.

At first Jack just whistled more or less politely, then he made a deep low bow. (Since Jack got back from his training camp, he bends double every chance he gets. He says it reminds him of those getting up exercises in the training camp before he got his overseas orders—then he murmured that on a bet his Betty was a better Better every day! and if only he'd been able to use similar tactics in regard to the recent Reno hand-shake, we might be occupying the bridal suite at the merry Oceanside.

I don't like prize fights, if that's what he means—and I'm quite satisfied with our little rose-covered cottage at Eastern Point, though, of course, the Oceanside is no end of fun to dine or dance in.

Well, anyhow, Jack "Took up" my bet—as he calls it—and so, if Peggy's in love again, I get a new sport-hat—and, if she isn't, Jack gets it—for me!

At any rate, we're all three going on a shopping spree soon. I just love to watch Jack shop—he looks so lost!

"CHANSONS DE FRANCE."

Pantomime and Folk Song by North Shore Children for Worthy Charity.

"Chansons de France," a play built around Boutet de Monvel's illustrations of old folk songs, will be given by a group of children of the summer colony on the North Shore in Horticultural Hall, Manchester, on August 1 and 2. The proceeds of the two entertainments will be turned over to the Memorial hospital at Rheims.

The songs and music have been arranged by Miss Dorothy Colt and the scenery and costumes have been designed by Miss Edith King. Music will be furnished by a volunteer orchestra behind the scenes.

The curtain represents the cover of the book. This parts in the centre and discloses the front page in a tableau. A bugle sounds the call. Barbara Mayor of Princeton and Annisquam, as a little red clown, then appears to tell the story of "Le Chevalier du Guet" in French, which is reproduced faithfully from the printed page, moonlight and all. Bobby Booth is the old father and Alexander McNutt the captain of the guard.

"La Mere Michel" comes next. This is a jolly pantomime, in which Barbara Mayor sings: Barbara Welch is an old lady who has lost her cat and Alfred Sumner is Lusterna, the innkeeper. "Le Queue Leu Leu" with Margot Warner and Peter de Florez, both under five, as the principal characters, and a procession of ten boys and girls led by Elinor Hopkinson, is a merry game which all the participants enjoy keenly. Joan Hopkinson has a song in "Savez vous planter des choux?" "Au clair de la lune" is sung by Betty Bradley, the old man, and Lorraine Warner, as Pierrot.

As a finale all the children will be assembled on a French balcony, each carrying the tri-colors and singing "La Marseillaise."

MAGNOLIA

To the Essex County Club

UP THE COUNTY.

Social and athletic festivities are at their height everywhere along the shore. All roads in this locality will run tennisward to the Essex County Club during the coming week.

Two lawn tennis events have been scheduled by the Essex County Club beginning on Monday. Scratch mixed doubles will be open to members and subscribers and their friends and also to members of the Myopia, Montserrat and Nahant clubs. Partners will be drawn by lot.

Ladies' handicap singles also will be played and will be open to members of the clubs named and also to invited guests. Entries for these events must be sent to the tennis committee at the clubhouse on or before Thursday, July 31.

The countryside of the county, aside from the seashore, appears to be monopolizing the major social attractions thus far the present season. Polo has again come into its own and is in higher favor than ever and this sport of financial kings, coupled with physical prowess, centers at the Myopia club, at Hamilton.

These matches gather added interest from the fact that many of the participants—like the sporting men of England who rallied to the defence of the Empire at the first call and many of whom "sleep in Flanders' fields"—saw service overseas and otherwise in the army and navy. Among these are: Captain Quincy A. Shaw McKean, Captain Bayard Tuckerman, Jr., Lieutenants A. C. Burrage, Jr., and Harry Pratt McLean, Ensign John H. Proctor and Captain Pentecost, R. N. In the cool of the afternoons some interesting practice matches may be witnessed on the grounds of the club.

Friday evening, August 15, will be a red letter date in the social calendar when the dance at the Hamilton Town Hall for the benefit of the Italian Relief Fund of America will be held. On dit that the Modistes of Magnolia, where foregather in summer the cream of the talent from the Big Cities, are busily building some charming gowns for those who plan to be "among those present" at the festivity. Undoubtedly "a good time will be had by all."

On the committee having the matter in charge is Mrs. R. De Wolf Sampson of New York and Manchester-by-the-Sea; Mrs. Harry P. McKean, Jr., of Beverly Farms; Mrs. William Roscoe Thayer, Mrs. Allen Curtis and Mrs. Gerald Bramwell. The treasurer is Mrs. Sampson. The patronesses include beside those mentioned the following: Mrs. Quincy A. Shaw, 2nd, Mrs. Albert J. Beveridge, Mrs. Malcolm Graeme Haughton, Mrs. E. Preble Motley, Jr., Mrs. Morris Gray, Mrs. Bayard Warren, Mrs. S. V. R. Crosby, Mrs. Lincoln Davis, Mrs. Thomas R. Curtis, Mrs. Reginald Boardman and Mrs. Reginald Foster.

A supper is included in the price of the ticket. A special late supper will be extra.

The Boston office of the fund, No. 405 Boylston street, is open every day from 10 to 5 and on Saturdays to 1. The executive committee is: Miss Susan C. Amory, Mrs. R. M. Appleton, Mrs. Carlo Buonamici, Mrs. Robert F. Clark, Mrs. Allen Curtis, Miss Rose L. Dexter, Mr.

ert deW. Sampson.

Bridge will be provided for in the lower hall while the upper hall and stage will be reserved for dancing. Mrs. Rodgers (Alice Meyer) will be in charge of the bridge tables. Reservations already made assure the success of the affair.

A feature which will be missed this year will be that of the annual public horse show by Judge William H. Moore of Pride's Crossing. This decision will be received with regret by the many lovers of the thoroughbred horse, of whom no one in the country has a finer stable of blue ribbon winners than Judge Moore. For several seasons he has exhibited these for charitable purpose.

A. Van Horne Stuyvesant of New York has leased the "Pitch Pine Hall" cottage at Beverly Farms.

A bridge whist tournament was held at the home of Mrs. Sydney Emlen Hutchinson at Beverly Farms, Thursday, in aid of the fund for the memorial hospital at Rheims, France.

The big golfing attraction of the summer at the Essex County Club will be the open tournament which began Thursday under the auspices of the Massachusetts Golf Association, and ended today.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick H. Allen of Pelham Manor, N. Y., are occupying the cottage on Coolidge Point which Col. and Mrs. F. M. House have occupied in past seasons. The Houses will not come to the shore as their stay abroad is indefinite.

Mr. and Mrs. James J. Phelan are now here for the season, occupying the Cobb cottage, Masconomo street, coming from their winter residence, 11 Cheswick road, Brookline. Mr. Phelan is connected with the firm of Hornblower & Weeks.

Captain Glenn, honorary attache of the British Embassy in Washington, is visiting Mrs. Marshall Field of Chicago, who has the Beveridge mansion, "Selwood," on Hale street, Beverly Farms.

Reginald Foster, Mr. Pasquale Galassi, Mrs. Susan Thayer Hooper, Mrs. Frank Seabury, Mrs. Edwin H. Mower, Mrs. Vittorio Orlandini, Mrs. Marta Rotoli, Mr. H. B. Russell, Mr. C. A. Pastene, Mrs. C. Linzee Tilden and Mrs. Rob-present, nothing was left undone, in the chaste and classic carvings and panellings of the period, to make the interior attractive and inviting.

Fortunately, it has been preserved intact, although there is a modern interpolation of a marble fireplace in one of the rooms which is to be removed, and the house restored as originally built.

In the Colonial days, the grounds terraced to the "Front Street" (renamed several years ago, "Main Street"), then the town was laid out with three parallel streets—the Front, Middle and Back streets.

These terraces, with their wealth of flowers and foliage dear to our grandmothers, was the Show Place of the town, and old letters and writings frequently make reference to them. It is planned to acquire the property to the Main Street front and restore these terraces just as they were in the time of its beautiful and talented mistress (her portrait by Copley bears visual corroboration of this). If this shall come to pass—and there seems an indication that such will be the case—then it will constitute one of the greatest of assets in attracting people of discernment and refinement to the city. That such results will follow is evidenced by the character of the gathering of Tuesday.

This idea was first suggested by Mr. William Sumner Appleton, of the Society for the Preservation of New England Antiquities, and on the coming of Rev. Dr. Powers to the pastorate of the Universalist church of this city, he was at once attracted to the value, historically and otherwise, of securing the property. Perhaps no other man than Dr. Powers could have accomplished this. It is to be regretted that he is to close his pastorate before the entire scheme of restoration is accomplished. For this "Renaissance," Gloucester is largely in his debt.

UP THE COUNTY.

Mr. and Mrs. George Wigglesworth motored down from Milton last Tuesday and will occupy their cottage at Manchester Neck for the remainder of the season. They are late in arriving this year on account of the serious illness of Mrs. Wigglesworth.

Grinnell Willis of Morristown, N. J., who is summering at Smith Point, has his daughter, Mrs. Robert W. Locke, and her four children with him for an extended visit.

T. Dennie Boardman, who has been quite seriously ill at his summer home, "The Chubbs," West Manchester, for several weeks, is reported much more comfortable.

Dr. William L. Sullivan of All Souls' Church, New York, occupied the pulpit at the Unitarian Church last Sunday, and John P. Marshall of the First Church, Boston, officiated at the organ.

The George W. Elkins, who have the McMillan estate at "Eagle Head" this season, have returned from a week-end motor trip to Poland Spring.

Dr. James H. Anderson, who has the "Lily Pond" cottage, Coolidge Point, this season, has as guest his niece, Mrs. John U. Calkins of Berkeley, Calif.

Dinner dances are a popular form of entertainment at the Essex County Club this season, the second for the season being held Friday evening, when the capacity of the dining-room was taxed. The third in the series is scheduled for next Friday.

LIFE AT THE ROCKAWAY.

The Thursday night series of hops held at the Rockaway are one of the most delightful social activities at this hostelry.

Tennis seems to lead in favor and some fine players are seen on the courts. Among these is Miss Ruth Haass, who won the championship from Miss Dorothy Maynard after a sharp six-days contest.

The second series of tennis will start Monday and the winning couples will be awarded a prize by the manager.

Fishing is another of the sports for the men guests who leave the Rockaway Pier for the grounds daily. Recently these fishermen struck fine black fishing off Dog Bar Breakwater, Mr. Hake of Cincinnati getting some fine specimens, landing 15 of the finny beauties.

Swimming and diving from the Rockaway float is a favorite diversion. Miss Farrell of Philadelphia being a skilled long-distance swimmer and expert diver.

FRANK E. DAVIS COMPANY PLANT AT GLOUCESTER

You are within a short motoring distance of one of the most interesting places in this section of the country.

The plant of the Frank E. Davis Company, well known to thousands of families as mail-order dealers in quality fish, is located at 93 Rogers Street, Gloucester, where you may see the interesting phases of the fish business. Hundreds annually avail themselves of this privilege. You are cordially invited to do the same.

As you've read the advertisements of this concern in your favorite magazine, undoubtedly you've said at one time or another, "Some day when I'm near there I'm going to see that Davis Company." Here, then, is your opportunity. The latch string is always out.

YACHTING AT ANNISQUAM.

Fine Sailing Breezes Bowl Boats Over the Course Saturday and Sunday at a Merry Clip. Nisan Kept Up Burst of Speed.

Four classes started in the Annisquam Yacht Club races Saturday afternoon in a steady, west-southwest breeze interspersed with flows and puffs outside. In the 15-foot class, the Nisan kept up the streak of form shown from the opening of the season. She got the best of the start and was never headed.

John Norton in the Archaeopteryx got the lead and kept it on the reaching work to Plum Cove, retained it on the windward work to the Lighthouse when the Aux worked out of the field into leading position. The Cat class also got away in a bunch, Wesley Pear in the Copycat leading all the way though his center-board became entangled in a fish net on the windward leg home. Eugene Persenett, the Harvard wrestler, one of the crew, slipped a bowline under the board and freed it from the net. Several of the class kept in too far toward the Plum-Cove shore and grounded on Plum-Cove Ledge, it being tide. The Catenary, which was second boat, lost out to the Catnip on the windward work. The Dog class sailed an interesting race. The summary:

DOG CLASS.

Bow-wow, Douglass Guiler	1:09:44
Ginger, William Graves	1:36:23

The surprise of the present season in the 15-foot class has been the increased speed shown by Daniel Howard Woodbury's Nisan. Evidently she has been tuned up to her highest pitch.

In all the races she has shown consistently, leading on the reaches and being especially strong on the end on work—the decisive point of sailing. In fact Saturday she outfooted and outpointed the and boats as Sherburne and Morrill Wiggin in the Hurrah and Tabasco, Jr. The fifteen footers appear to be just the class for the "grownups" in this yachting game and we look for material accessions to this desirable division of the club's flotilla.

In the Sunday morning race of the Annisquam Yacht Club, in a steady though variable breeze, which at the start was west-northwest and which backed around to north-northwest and then steadied down to northward, the Aux again carried off the honors.

The start was against an incoming tide. The boats found themselves unable to breast its force, were carried back past the line and had to start all over, the Aux getting the best of the getaway and never being headed.

The conditions were a beat to the river mouth, a reach to the channel buoy, a beat to Essex and a run home. At the lighthouse coming up the homestretch the Aux was leading, with the Archaeopteryx and Squab second and third. Then the Osprey pulled out of the ruck and passed into second place, which she held.

The Cat class went over the same course under the same conditions, Fred Hawkins sailing the Katchup to a five-minute win over the second boat. The prizes in each class were $5, $3 and $2.

The afternoon race was one postponed from July 5. The wind at the start was variable from west-northwest, flattening down to a calm and later coming strong from the west. The course was a reach to the inner buoy and also a reach to Plum Cove, with a beat home.

The Meow II, sailed by Russell Smith, took the lead, but it was the verdict of the contestants that the honors in seamanship went to Miss Pauline Ames, daughter of Oakes Ames of North Easton.

On the way home the Seat and Copycat had a luffing match, with the usual result, the Catling and Catnip passing them while so engaged. The summary:

July Meeting of College Women's Club at Marmion Way Draws Representative Men and Women. EIdtor Rosebault Talked Interestingly.

The July meeting of the College Women's Club of Gloucester proved a delightful occasion in the form of a picnic supper at the home of Mrs. George E. Cameron, Marmion Way, Rockport.

In response to the cordial invitation extended to all college women and men of the summer colony and the men friends of the members nearly a hundred people assembled from all parts of this country including representatives from Mt. Holyoke, Ann Arbor, Boston University, Columbia, Chicago, Goucher, the Universities of Minnesota, Nebraska, Indiana and Wisconsin, Morel de Foss, Radcliffe, Smith, Vassar and Wellesley, sixteen women's colleges of America and one of Paris, France.

The men's colleges were also well represented. Mr. Charles Rosebault, the well known editor of the Vigilantes and a former editor of the New York Sun, was the speaker of the evening and delighted his audience with a remarkably interesting and informal "chat" as he timed his address.

Mr. Rosebault told informally of his experiences in France, Austria and Germany during his long period of residence and travel in those countries both before and during the war. On the latter occasion he was sent by the Red Cross magazine.

Thursday Prof. Charles Sprague Sargent and Mrs. Paul Dana of New York motored down the Shore and made a visit to the Judith Sargent Art Gallery.
